Receives Fountain Pen.
Both the President and Knox made happy speeches at the Ad Club, where the President was presented with a fountain pen. The expression of a hope that he would use the pen at Washington brought from the President a reference to the possibility of the Democrats capturing Congress at the November election. Said he: "I shall be glad to use this pen. My predecessor was in the habit of frequently quoting a celebrated warrior's remark that his spear knew no brother. As I look at my friend Mack, and I hope I can say my friend Connors, and consider what is coming through their veins and minds, and their ardent expectations that there is to be a majority of Democrats in Congress next time, it appears that I shall have to use this pen, not to sign bills, but to explain the reasons why I do not. But I hope at least that I shall have the privilege of using it in signing those measures I have so much at heart now, and that I have been chided for coming to Buffalo on account of, let my presence in Washington be needed to secure the votes necessary to their passage."

Respects to Correspondents.
Speaking generally, the President again paid his respects to the "statesmen-correspondents" at Washington. Said he:

"Very early in my administration I had a call from an earnest correspondent and reformer—for we unite those qualities in Washington—who chided me for a number of defects in my administration, the chief one of which was that I did not sufficiently use the pulpit that was mine to counsel. Realizing that I think you must allow me to take my rank among those who have advertised rather than those who have advised."

"The personal touch, after all, is that which makes life worth living. For the first time in my life, I have about the country I have subjected a member of the Cabinet to the same sort of treatment, and it has been a great relief to me to have the Secretary of State with me and to know that if there are any pitfalls into which I may precipitate myself, he is here to advise me against them. It is just as well to cultivate the diplomatic, and as that is his business, I thought I would bring him along to see that at least while my legislative measures are pending in Congress I should do nothing to interfere with their passage."

The President and his party arrived here at 7:30 o'clock this morning over the Northern Central Railroad from Washington. Breakfast was served at the home of Ansley Wilcox, after which the President rested and received a few callers. At 1:30 P. M. he and Secretary Knox visited the Chamber of Commerce, which was followed by the luncheon at the University Club. The following day the President paid a brief visit to the Gratzky Laboratory, where Dr. Gaylor is conducting his experiments into cancer, and the preliminary results of which prompted the President recently to send a special message to Congress. Immediately after the luncheon the President and his party boarded his private car, which left here for Pittsburgh at 11 o'clock.

City's Guest of Honor.
Amid a blaze of electric lights which brought out the national colors and the State insignia in bold relief, 1,000 diners took part in the great inauguration banquet given in honor of President Taft by the Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' Association to-night in Convention Hall. The spacious hall had been transformed into a veritable floral bower illuminated by thousands of incandescent bulbs.

The great seal of the United States, surrounded by the seals of the separate States and all set off by electric light, figured in the decorations, and the mammoth "buffalo" of the Industrial Exposition held his place majestically on the stage. But brighter even than the dazzling light was the smile of the nation's head, as amid a thunder of applause, he entered the hall and took his place at the speaker's table. The massive form of the President towered above all others present, and as he looked out over the sea of a thousand faces looking into his, he could not but realize that he had a warm place in the hearts and trust of the people of Buffalo.

The President spoke of the New York State Barge Canal, and predicted the great success of the venture. He declared the United States has much to learn from the waterway systems

Hands and Arms In Dreadful State

With Eczema—Baby Lay Between Life and Death

Another Wonderful Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"When my baby was four months old his face broke out with eczema. The doctor said he would soon be all right, but he steadily grew worse, and at sixteen months of age his face, hands and arms were in a dreadful state. The eczema seemed to be spreading all over his body. His face was so sore we were obliged to put a mask or cloth over it. We were obliged also to tie up his hands and arms to prevent him from scratching the inflamed places. We consulted other doctors, used ointments and salves sent us by friends and neighbors. Some of these things would seem to have some effect, but after a few days would take like a poison and increase this stubborn disease."

Just one year ago this month, baby lay between life and death. We felt that we must give up trying to find any cure or relief. Our hearts were just breaking, and we had the sympathy of friends and neighbors. Finally my husband said, "I am going to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Olive Ointment." We began to use these medicines, and oh! the results were astonishing. In a few months he was entirely free from that terrible eczema, which had caused him so much suffering. To-day he is a fine, healthy boy.—Mrs. Inez Lewis, Baring, Me.

Hood's Sarsaparilla effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla, but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than twenty different ingredients, each greatly strengthened and purified by this peculiar combination. These ingredients are the basis of successful physicians prescribe for the same diseases and ailments, but they are not all found in any other medicine. Get of Europe.

The President devoted much of his speech to purely local topics. He spoke of Niagara Falls as being an embarrassment as between scenic grandeur and industrial utility. This brought him to a discussion of the conservation of natural resources and indirectly to a reference to Secretary Ballinger, when he said:

"Let me lift my voice in behalf of those who are responsible for carrying forward this work and plead that they shall not be traduced and misrepresented in reaching a solution of a problem most difficult."

The President dwelt at some length on the conservation bills in Congress, and especially the one confirming the right of the executive to withdraw lands from public entry.

SECRET OF YEARS AT LAST REVEALED

Wire Supplying Big Bucket-Shop Centres Is Laid Bare.

"SURE THING" MADE POSSIBLE

Raid by Federal Officers Likely to Break Up Whole System.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
New York, April 30.—Another important arrest in the Federal bucket-shop system was made to-day when government officers arrested Frank Maier, of the firm of Morrison & Maier, in his office at 44 Broad Street. The specific charge against Maier is conspiracy to violate the Federal law relating to bucketshops. It is alleged that Maier, in conjunction with Louis Cella, Edwards Altman and H. L. Duray, has been furnishing stolen quotations to bucketshops all over the Eastern part of the United States. It is stated that the Federal detectives that Maier is the head of a sort of clearing house for all the bucketshops in the East.

The government agents at the same time cut the telegraph wires leading to all the places here and in New Jersey under suspicion of being bucket-shops.

Coincidentally two special agents of the United States Department of Justice paid a visit to an office in the Lincoln Trust Company building, at 75 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, and arrested Joseph Decker, a telegraph operator.

Decker was alone in the office, on the door of which was inscribed: "T. Marrian, member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange. He was immediately arraigned in court in Jersey City on a charge of conspiracy against the United States government, alleged to have been committed in Washington, D. C.

The police say Decker had in the office a stock ticker, from which he is alleged to have copied quotations and sent them practically all over the United States. The evidence was found indicating that the Western Union Telegraph Company, on whose directorate are many shining lights in Wall Street, derived a revenue from the bucket shop wires of more than $5,000,000 a year. The New York Stock Exchange, it is also charged, is to blame for not exercising reasonable care in protecting its quotations and checking the Western Union as the Chicago Board

COMET IS FIRST AID TO CHICKEN THIEVES

New York, April 30.—Several farmers of Towaco, near Montclair, N. J., are mourning the loss of their stock of chickens, which were stolen yesterday morning while the farmers and their families were congregated on top of the Waukhaw Mountain waiting for Halley's comet to appear. According to Nehemiah, Doolittle, one of the victims, two well-dressed young men drove through Towaco Thursday afternoon and said that the comet would be nearest the earth at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. They said they represented a scientific school, and in the interest of science were prepared to give ten, five and two-and-a-half dollar gold pieces for the best description of the comet. The folks didn't take to the scheme at first, but it became noised abroad that Cyrus Lauterger's daughter, Lily, was going to take her easel and palette to the top of the mountain and make a sketch of the comet and its surroundings, and was determined to win the first prize. Jash Vanderlip's daughter, Marie, decided she would make a bid for first prize. Then everybody became interested and a number of bets were made. By 2 o'clock in the morning the villagers were on top of the mountain, waiting for the comet to appear. When 3 o'clock came without any sign of the comet, the folks didn't feel worried. It was not until sunrise that the girls picked up their easels and paints, and, accompanied by the others, started for their homes. Cyrus Lauterger was the first to discover that his 200-odd chickens were gone, and it was not long after that until it was learned that every chicken coop in the place was cleaned out.

approval of the New York Exchange.

But the most important feature of all in the eyes of the men from the Department of Justice was the baring of the secret hidden for almost forty years of the so-called "Marrin wire." This is the line through which all the big bucket shop centres from New England, across the continent as far as Omaha, have been served for years with fast wires that enabled them to swindle their dupes by obtaining quotations from the New York Exchange from five minutes to fifteen minutes ahead of the ordinary ticker on which the dupes relied. By this advantage in time the bucket-shop keeper was enabled to make every "speculation" a sure thing so far as he was concerned.

The three offices raided are alleged to be the headquarters of this elaborate wire system, and the sum total of the raids is that almost every bucket shop in the United States has been put out of business.

BOY OUTLAW LAID TRAP FOR ANOTHER

New York, April 30.—Chief of Police Charles Schmidt, of Carlstadt, N. J., shot by Clarence Weed, of Rutherford, the boy outlaw, who beat Miss Anna Kipp in the Rutherford Boat Club, died last night. Schmidt was wounded until a few minutes before his death, and until 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon it was thought he would recover. Hemorrhage of the lung was the immediate cause of death.

The bullet that struck Schmidt broke two ribs, exposing and puncturing his left lung, and half severed his left arm above the elbow. During the early part of yesterday Schmidt rested comfortably. Three physicians were attending him, and they said that unless a hemorrhage occurred he would recover.

Miss Kipp's wounds are not serious, and she was slightly better yesterday. The funeral of the young desperado, who committed suicide after being besieged for hours, was held to-day from his parents' residence, 55 Ames Avenue, Rutherford. It was private and secrecy was observed as to its details.

The calm of peaceful Rutherford has not as yet subsided, and all in the neighborhood are still wondering why he "seemingly" turned so suddenly crazy, for the consensus of opinion is that he was insane.

That he planned to murder another girl was declared yesterday, when it became known that he had made an engagement with Miss Florence Smith, of 206 Montross Avenue, to accompany him "and a party" on Thursday night. He extended the invitation, it appears, after he had made the arrangements for the morning trip with Miss Kipp.

He was only a friend of Miss Smith, who is in the same social group, and his invitation came as a surprise to her, being the first of any kind from him for two years. She is thankful his plans were interrupted Thursday morning.

Attacked His Wife. While suffering from the after effects of a protracted spree, J. O. Mann, of 217 Hull Street, made a violent attack on the life of his neighbor, Henry Cohn, who lives at 115 West Ninth Street after to-morrow.

Police Justice Maurice, in Police Court, Part 2 yesterday morning. He denied any recollection of the event, and said he did not know what he was doing. A. T. Crowder and P. S. Bridgman were the witnesses. After hearing their statements and the statement of Mann himself, Justice Maurice imposed a fine of $20 and sent Mann to jail for three months. Mann afterwards explained that he must have been temporarily insane at the time, and that he greatly regretted the affair.
